Dear [Hiring Manager's name / Hiring Manager],

I'm a Senior Mobile Developer with seven years building React and React Native products, and I'm looking for my next role somewhere the work makes a real difference to people's lives.

Right now I'm a Senior Mobile Developer on the Innovation Squad at Arcus FM, where I built and own the React Native app field engineers use to complete their work orders on site, from prototype through to production: architecture, CI/CD, testing and release. On Fridays I'm also the squad's Forward Deployed Engineer, working directly with engineers and operations teams to ship AI-driven tools they use every day. I coach colleagues on using Claude through AWS Bedrock and built the shared AI workflows our team develops with.

Before that I led frontend development at CMap Software, where I architected a monorepo of four apps connecting Outlook to SharePoint through the Microsoft Graph API, and introduced CI/CD and TDD practices that cut deployment time by over 35% and regressions by almost 60%. Earlier, I built a retail loyalty app that reached 150,000 users in its first year.

What I'm looking for is a team solving problems that matter, where I can sit close to the people using the product and turn what they need into working software quickly. If [Company] is doing that kind of work, I'd love to talk about [role title].

Thank you for your time. My CV is attached, and more of my work is at hawksworth.dev.

Kind regards,

Joshua Hawksworth
